PFAs have been extensively produced and studied in the United States, only recently companies have been phasing out these chemicals in their products. They have been used extensively in consumer products such as carpets, clothing, fabrics for furniture, paper packaging for food, and other materials (e.g., cookware) designed to be waterproof, stain-resistant or non-stick and they have been used in fire-retardant foam and various industrial processes. Currently, PFAs (groups of chemicals that include PFOA, PFOS, PFBs, PFHxS) have been detected in ground water throughout Southern California and are being thoroughly studied to determine the potential health effects. Based on the current evaluation of recent human and animal toxicity data, low amounts of exposure to PFAs may result in adverse health effects including hepatotoxicity, immunotoxicity, thyroid toxicity, reproductive toxicity, and cancer. The population at most risk to these effects are pregnant women, children and the elderly.

South Montebello Irrigation District is currently preparing to construct a new treatment plant located at our main office location to filter out these substances from its water.
